Quadangle Accepts Two More Members To Fill Its Vacancies

Place Left By Unusually Dead Of Member Last Summer Goes Unfilled

The Quadangle Club, honorary sophomore society, bid adieu to two new members, Frederick Garner, ’39, and William Porter, ’40, at a meeting Wednesday night.

The ballots, collected to fill the vacancies, were cast and counted, and the new members were immediately induced at a banquet to be held in the dining room of Walker Memorial.

The club also voted not to fill the position of secretary of the club, which is really a part-time job, because of the other activities and academic work which a student who tries to fill the position must choose.

As yet no move has been made to select a new president. Vice-president James Fifeal, ’39, has been filling the position left vacant by Mr. Ginneally’s resignation.

Late Orders For Class Rings May Be Seen At Student Union

Students who have not already ordered class rings may do so at the information office, 10-100, until the close of business on Friday, November 19th, at which time the chairman of the Senior Ring Committee, Gaylord C. Eldridge, will have his classes over, however, that late orders cannot be filled before Christmas.
