Harvard's Notoriety As Girls School Established Even Among Europeans

Technology men long declared that Harvard was their favorite women's college, but they have never been out of this opinion until the following letter, addressed to the "Director of University John Harvard" found its way into a recent Harvard Crimson. It came from London, and read:

"Dear Sir,

"Good Morning,

"My son is a postgraduate of American nation. And he is deep admiration from American civilization, renders him a very young beamed man. Are U. S. A. a great country? My son can be reading constantly as accredited American writers. And my son be good genius of intimate, sentimental, affectionate, interesting.

"Sincerely yours,

London, England"

"SHARING THE DECKS FOR" a action, the Prem Committee very promptly presented two budgets for approval. Meditating on the success of that year's F. U. G. and trying to judge the sentiment of their class they decided in favor of a large band. The "Old Friend" as second choice.

"Inability to secure an appropriate college, we nevertheless predict, will result in this year's Prem following the precedent set by the Titanic sink such as it is an iceberg. The supernatural explanation is in the line of least resistance whereas the natural one is in terms of immediate explanations. These explanations do not conflict.

In parts I and II, you have defined science and religion as two different methods of dealing with the same thing. This was a misleading definition because religion is not as much concerned with phenomena as with the biochemical processes which take place within man, but the whole man reacts toward his world according to his religious or scientific knowledge; the province of religion is to work with the inner man, and the biochemical processes are methods that are mutually exclusive but complementary.

Joseph G. Bryan, '38

(Editors note: It is impossible to discuss the two different methods of dealing with the same thing. This was a misleading definition because religion is not as much concerned with phenomena as with the biochemical processes which take place within man, but the whole man reacts toward his world according to his religious or scientific knowledge; the province of religion is to work with the inner man, and the biochemical processes are methods that are mutually exclusive but complementary."
