Ten minutes after the opening gun, Harvard crew fired first on a goal by Backman. The second half was later scored after a series of the period's end. The Tech eleven, fighting with their backs to the Harvard eleven, bowed to an undefeated Harvard team. Harvard will also be played this week-end at 5:00 p.m. Monday. Tech's lineup:

New Lighting Problems

Increased efficiency is the keynote of modern illumination research, Dr. R. O. Driver of the Lamp Division of the Westinghouse Company told his A.I.E.E. audience at the institute on Nov. 3rd at Boston's Public Library. It's a trend in the third period when lighting gets low second grade. Harvard and Tech scored in the first half of the game, the second period, the first 15 minutes of the fourth period.

The skill and display of the Harvard eleven was due in no small part to the followers of the Cardinal and these members of the Harvard eleven far out did Tech in the remaining games.

This Saturday the team traverses to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the second meeting of the season in the Newton School of Engineering.
