Dean Emerson Honor Guest
At Reception
Seven Hundred Inspect
Rogers Building

DR. COMPTON PRESIDES
Seven hundred guests attended the reception for Dean William Emerson and family members of the School of Architecture, held last night in the new Rogers Building from 9:30 to 11:00.

President Karl T. Compton and the members of the Corporation were bused to the large number of guests, some of whom came from New York for the occasion. An inspection of Graduate House and other exhibitions of architectural work were highlight of the evening.

Reception in Lobby
The host, at the entrance of the lobby of the new Rogers Building, where a specially designed, formal decoration formed the background for the receiving line. Among those who joined President and Mrs. Karl T. Compton in receiving the guests were Dean and Mrs. Emerson; Dr. and Mrs. Vaughan Bush; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Blockson; Mr. Charles H. Maguild, president of the American Institute of Architects; Mr. John T. Watson, president of the Boston Society of Architects; Professor Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Flanders; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lawrence; and President and Mrs. Frederick A. Adams.

Christmas Dance Features Santa
Misseltoe And Gifts Will Add Noyelty To Dormitory Informal Affair
Santa Claus, gifts, refreshments, and music are among the festivities which have been planned to make the Dorm Christmas Dance on Friday night at Walker one of the most informal and enjoyable of the season.

The identity of Santa Claus and all plans surrounding his arrival at the dorm have been kept secret, but rumors have lacked no that in time there is no more to provide Santa with tramps, Mary McHugh, Santa, has a police record, became angered at photographers. He attempted to charge them but was stopped by a blow from a policeman who sent him to the floor. The above photo shows him falling.

Police Surprised To Discover Prisoners Unhurt By Students

Surprise was expressed by Cambridge police in finding the ten suspected trespassers in such good physical condition. According to one officer, they fully expected to see two beaten and unconscious bodies on the central dormitory floor. Students in Say Hall however, the blood of the crowd of students who held the juveniles captive was one of joyful excitement rather than that of an angry mob. Jokes named back and forth.

One new-dorm resident, upon arriving at the scene of the excitement, asked what was happening. It was told by a loyal old-timer, "Those are our crooks. Go back and catch your own.

SUSPECT AFTER QUESTIONING

McHugh Carries Crowd
McHugh was very cool. He had sweated at those about him until silenced by the threats of several students. Murphy, however, seemed to have had all the fight taken out of him in his struggle with McHugh, who stood against the leading wall and looked rather frightened.

Wiley Starts Withhold
Traditional dislike of the Cambridge police for Technology water bags was voiced by one policeman when he exited the dorms that were closed, but the wide entrance hall was not to the alarm of several students. Murphy, however, seemed to have had all the fight taken out of him in his struggle with McHugh, who stood against the leading wall and looked rather frightened.

McHugh Claims Crowd
"I'm not responsible for what they did. I just happened to be there." But the others claimed that they were just following orders. They said that they were just doing what the crowd wanted them to do.

Police Seek Link With 4 Other Thefts, Hold Pair in $10,000 Bail

On trial today after being captured by two Technology students in a chase through a dormitory hall early Saturday morning, John W. Murphy and Joseph McHugh, alias Dennis Carey, face charges of breaking and entering and assaults.

The suspects have been held since Saturday on $5,000 bail each, in the house of correction. McHugh, the alias of the pair, is twenty-two years old, and has a police record. He was apprehended some time after being seized by the Harvard Police, charged with breaking and entering and assaults, but was put on probation last July 31.

Caught at Sixth Floor, Gridded
Credited with a line to John L. MacKerron, '46, occupant of the in-room, is a complaint of loitering in morning. At MacKerron's neighbor, MacKerron, in an interview with the Tec, stated that he was sleeping then and had awakened when he heard a slight noise. Looking about, he prepared two forms of his clothes.

"What do you want?" he asked.
"That or you won't let me have it?" was the reply he received.
"Where's your wallet?"

Merrimack Et cetera
At this point, made suspicious by the noise, Merrimack entered through the door connecting the two rooms. The allowable occupants entered the room, but then left the house.

Both men were then seen to be chasing each other, then swerving in the opposite direction.

Merrimack seized Murphy before the chase, made a dash for the dorm, and then swerving in the opposite direction.

Engineers' Sex Appeal

Two male occupation engineers have made a joint appearance on the campus in an attempt to attract the attention of the ladies. The two men, both of whom are members of the Engineering fraternity, have been seen to be carrying gifts, and have been heard to be talking in a low tone.

The two men, who are both members of the Engineering fraternity, have been seen to be carrying gifts, and have been heard to be talking in a low tone.

"What do you think of Tech men?" the following illuminating answers were received:

Esther Stevens, 42: "I haven't seen many Tech men yet, but in my opinion, they seem to be a good sort."

James Mclntosh, 31: "I think Tech men are a fine bunch and can be found anywhere in the country.

Betty Hannel, 24: "Now, what do you think?"

Prof. Schell Earns Award

Gilchrist Medal Presented
To Course 15 Head
For Fine Work

This year's winner of the Gilchrist Medal for Management Achievement is Professor Ewen H. Riddle, head of the Department of Business and Engineering Administration. The award is made annually by the Society for the Advancement of Management to that person who, in its opinion, has made the most outstanding contributions to industrial engineering and management.

Professor Riddle is considered a leader in his field and has received many awards for his work. He is known for his ability to manage and lead, and has been able to bring people together to work towards a common goal.

At Reception
In lobby a reception has been held in the lobby of the new Rogers Building. The reception was attended by many guests, including President Karl T. Compton and the members of the Corporation. Among those attending were Dean and Mrs. Emerson, Dr. and Mrs. Vaughan Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Blockson, Mr. Charles H. Maguild, president of the American Institute of Architects; Mr. John T. Watson, president of the Boston Society of Architects; Professor Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Flanders; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lawrence, and President and Mrs. Frederick A. Adams.

SUSPECT AFTER QUESTIONING

McHugh Claims Crowd
McHugh was very cool. He had sweated at those about him until silenced by the threats of several students. Murphy, however, seemed to have had all the fight taken out of him in his struggle with McHugh, who stood against the leading wall and looked rather frightened.

Wiley Starts Withhold
Traditional dislike of the Cambridge police for Technology water bags was voiced by one policeman when he exited the dorms that were closed, but the wide entrance hall was not to the alarm of several students. Murphy, however, seemed to have had all the fight taken out of him in his struggle with McHugh, who stood against the leading wall and looked rather frightened.

McHugh Claims Crowd
"I'm not responsible for what they did. I just happened to be there." But the others claimed that they were just following orders. They said that they were just doing what the crowd wanted them to do.

Police Seek Link With 4 Other Thefts, Hold Pair in $10,000 Bail

On trial today after being captured by two Technology students in a chase through a dormitory hall early Saturday morning, John W. Murphy and Joseph McHugh, alias Dennis Carey, face charges of breaking and entering and assaults.

The suspects have been held since Saturday on $5,000 bail each, in the house of correction. McHugh, the alias of the pair, is twenty-two years old, and has a police record. He was apprehended some time after being seized by the Harvard Police, charged with breaking and entering and assaults, but was put on probation last July 31.

Caught at Sixth Floor, Gridded
Credited with a line to John L. MacKerron, '46, occupant of the in-room, is a complaint of loitering in morning. At MacKerron's neighbor, MacKerron, in an interview with the Tec, stated that he was sleeping then and had awakened when he heard a slight noise. Looking about, he prepared two forms of his clothes.

"What do you want?" he asked.
"That or you won't let me have it?" was the reply he received.
"Where's your wallet?"

Merrimack Et cetera
At this point, made suspicious by the noise, Merrimack entered through the door connecting the two rooms. The allowable occupants entered the room, but then left the house.

Both men were then seen to be chasing each other, then swerving in the opposite direction.