Riot

and tried to break through. They set a barrage of snowballs that quickly covered Windows and windshields with a thick coating of snow. Several drivers drove on into the barrier, and others drove back by volleys of the handy ammunition.

Fun for Materiales

Evidently convinced that he was not about to be arrested, the would-be rioter cautiously opened the door, admitted his friend and proceeded to tell him all about the night's rebellion. Some thirty feet from the barricade, some thirty feet from the gate to the dormitory grounds, and at the barricade, some thirty feet from in the dormitory. Some thirty feet from

men were being pelted with snowballs. Several

officers emerged from the police car while others approached from Memorial Drive, where several squad cars were parked. Most of the students ran into the dormitory grounds, some thirty feet from

were being pelted with snowballs.

Students Use Roof

Students at the time were also throwing snowballs from the roof, forcing police to take cover behind the potted sign. One officer then fired his revolver into the air. Added by additional reinforcements, the police then rushed into the dormitory grounds.

Snowplow Arrives

At this point a snowplow came up

Ambrose Street and a control wagon appeared from Main Street. Both were greeted with snowballs. Several
