WITH MALICE TOWARDS NONE

There seems to be no way out.

We cannot fight war with hatred, for hatred is the father and mother of war. It is wrong because it is immoral, because it is cruel. It is wrong because it is a disease, because we think of the people against whom we are fighting as worse than ourselves. We may even believe that they are better than we are, that they are not as good as we are. But our hatred will make us worse than they are, and it will make them worse than they are.

The time is coming when we must face the darkness of our own hearts. The fact that we cannot be everywhere at once does not excuse us from the responsibility of being everywhere.

The Reader Speaks

The world is in a state of confusion and fear. We must stand up and fight for what is right. We must not be afraid of the enemy, for they are only human beings like us.
