Glen Miller Out
As Possible Band For Junior Prom

Hotel Pennsylvania Conference Prevents Appearance, Committee Says

Glen Miller will not play for the Junior Prom, the committee revealed last night. The reason given was Miller's appearance at the T.C.A. Conference on the night of the dances.

Miller, in a press statement, made available last night, said: "If we had been considered for the Junior Prom the contract would absolutely be available until after April 1 because of a contract at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. The Prom Committee has attempted to obtain Miller, but, since that is now impossible, it will extend every effort to follow the suggestion of the Junior Class as expressed in its recent poll."

Field Poll

Attempts to sign Miller and his band for the prom from a poll held last night on November 29, to determine the class' choice of orchestra and place. Results of the voting were never made public, but comments current at that time gave Miller an easy victory.
