THE READER SPEAKS

The letter from Mr. Levine which appeared in the last issue of The Tech generated a number of very able commentaries, many of which were printed. However, the comments also contained some inaccuracies or misinterpretations. Here is a summary of the main issues discussed and how they were addressed:

1. Mr. Levine, the editor of The Tech, expressed concern about the National Youth Administration (NYA) and its impact on students. He believed that the NYA was causing harm to students and that the federal government should support higher education instead of NYA projects.

2.ary J. Levine is opposed to our emphasis on NYA assistance, he would divert all national defense moneys to such purposes.

3. The NYA provides job opportunities for students, but the Critic Committee is divided on whether this is a good thing. Some believe that it is beneficial, while others think it is harmful.

4. The Critic Committee is considering whether to continue its support of NYA efforts or to redirect its resources to other causes.

5. The letter from Mr. Levine has not received a response from the Critic Committee. The board is currently reviewing the situation before making a decision.

6. The Critic Committee is also considering whether to publish letters expressing different viewpoints on the NYA debate. They want to ensure that all sides of the issue are represented.

The Tech will continue to publish articles and letters on this topic, and the Critic Committee will make a decision on how to proceed in the future.
