The Indoor track picture is accounted for by the Indian women, who have shown a surprising speed in the long distance running. The team will be the first in the track meet with the start of the season.

Major Briggs Advocated Many Of Modern Athletic Practices

Major Frank Hurricus Briggs 31, long time advisor of the Athletic Council at Technology, was also the first to introduce the modern rules, head coaching, and modern practice methods in college athletics.

A great exponent of outdoor track and field, Major Briggs made track records for his attendance of the track team in the first and second seasons. Under his direction, the track team was placed in the first three places in the New England League.

Many Of Technology's Coaches Have Been Olympic Champions

Olympic champions, worldrecord holders, and national professionals and students: many athletes are walking the halls of the Institute.

Among the Olympic participants are: Don Labique, Ph.D., of Detroit, and Dr. Kenneth Johnson, both from the Institute of Technology.

The World's Fair Basketball Team, which was sponsored by the Athletic Council, was also a success. The team was placed in the first three places in the New England League.

Cornell University, in the first year of the Institute, was placed in the first three places in the New England League.

The team included: Joe Silver, George Smith, and Robert O'Neill.
