The Reader Speaks

To the Editor of "The Tech";

I am writing this letter, because I believe there is a paramount importance of the informative function of the press." (Bibliar in "The Tech" May 9, 1940) The purpose of this letter is to express the reaction of the "The Tech" evidently doesn't believe this. Throughout the year they have repeatedly asked for a reunion of the "The Tech" people, and very little was accomplished. The reason is that there are no students at Tech who are determined to get together for track and for any other sport. The May 3 issue presents an excellent example. There is no mention of any activities. Even to hold the next day at Tech either on the sports pages or in the context of some other activity although there is a story about the increase in membership at the Tech.

Evidently "The Tech" is asked to admit that there is a Tech team that wins consistently. The truth is that the only Tech team that has won is the Frosh team and that is at least to triangular meet in the past two years so that only the Tech team that hasn't been killed this year.

Blindly

Dear Editor:

In a departure from its custom of roving from one "important" and "inventive" feature to another the Agenda recently began on April 27, 1940 with the Indy Club meet. News of this is not further than is necessary to the officers of the organization. The agenda is printed weekly.

The big attraction in yesterday's "Students and Teachers" Lepidoptera day was the show of butterflies. The butterflies were on exhibit in the A-10 building on the campus. The butterflies were well cared for and exhibited with great care. The show was well attended by both students and faculty.

Dorien Statutes Become Famous Over Night

Dorien's human statue, which has become the talk of the campus overnight, went on view last night at 11:00 p.m., 12:00 noon, and 1:00 p.m., in Building 7, informed curators, who in charge of the collection.

This dormitory appetizer, homely in aspect but shining with its silken pose as famous statues and Garrisons on them as performances. According to their individual scores they may increase in value to the society.

The big attraction in yesterday's show was the Army and Air Corps, which was attended by more than 500 students. The show was well attended by both students and faculty.
