Architect To Speak On Industrial Design

Albert Kahn, distinguished industrial architect of Detroit, will speak on the basic principles of industrial design, when he appears as the guest of the Institute's Departments of Architecture and of Building Design meeting and construction as a public lecture to be held in Room 357A, Tuesday, November 15 at 4:00 P.M. Mr. Kahn, who is internationally famous, originated the idea of having entire plants under one roof and designed the first factory in this country to be made of reinforced concretes.

Some of the better-known structures which he has designed are the Great Western Refrigerating Company's Carling-Boy- son building at Chicago, Michigan; building of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company, East Hartford, Conn.; and several buildings of the Ford Motor Company. In 1929 he was commissioned to design a $13,000,000 tractor factory for Russia.
