Stratton Prize Course Advisers Are Appointed

Three Best Talks Of Technical Interest To Win $100 In Awards

The first prize in the competition was awarded to Miss Gertrude Goldberg for a lucid explanation of scientific processes. The second prize went to Mr. James Smith for his presentation of oral reports on selected faculty members. The third prize was given to Mr. Robert Jones for his paper on the history and significance of recent developments in technology.

The competition, which was established in 1930 by the late President William S. Watson, is open to all undergraduates. The winners are selected on the basis of excellence by the presentation of oral reports on subjects of technical interest. The competition aims to encourage students to express their ideas and learn explanation of scientific processes.

Fifty Dollar First Prize

The first prize in the competition is fifty dollars. The second prize is twenty dollars. The subject of the talks may deal with any recent developments in science or industry, or in any investigations which is of significance and can be expressed within the fifteen minute limit.

In the first presentation, judges selected by the departmental adviser will vote to select the candidate to proceed. Here, no one argumentally will be required to be informed as to the content of the semifinals. Those selected for the semifinal will be given a brief of judgements from the faculty. The student will be given an opportunity to make his final presentation which will be held at a convention called by Dr. Karl T. Compton. The winners in the final competition will be announced at a convention to be held at a convention center.

CALCULATION OF DIVIDENDS

To the Members of the Institute,

It is my pleasure to report to you the accounting of the dividends for the current year. The total dividends paid out for the year were $100,000. The division of these dividends among the members was based on the number of shares owned by each member. The dividends were paid out in two installments, the first on November 1 and the second on December 1.
