TECH PLAYS BELOW STANDARD

In the game on Thursday, the Tech team played well below the standard it set during the Harvard game. Passing was sluggish and inaccurate, and field-handling was bad in spots.

Lowell opening the scoring by slaming into a shot right under the basket, after about a minute of play. Samuels went with a long shot, and by dint of baskets made in quick succession by Glick, Beimel, and in the second minute mark. Samuels’s sharp eye and steady hand put two more points up on the board during this half to bring the score up to 14-3 at the interval.
