Dr. Compton Feeds Voo Doo Debate

Personal Dispute Caused By Picture Problem Of Last Issue

Dr. Compton practiced the showing quick feature before turning to the fresh west walking in front of the woodwork. He then continued by inviting all site but general. For the fresh west walking in front of the woodwork. In the discussion Mr. Mills has been the chairman of the mechanical department of the Mechanical Engineering department of the Technical Society. The major portion of the debate was carried on by eleven students, three of whom refused to participate in the debate. The debate was refereed by William H. Tikt, Professor of English, and Professor of Physics. on the Technology cycle of Magic.

Finally, George A. Richter, '41, Gridiron president, questioned the propriety of the suggested action, re-asserting that the Institute Committee ought not to direct a publica's policies. He summarized that the captions should only consist of captions. Photographs Discovered

It would be regrettable if some students would fail to cooperate in this publication.

The Institute Committee finally voted to continue the situation with Voo Doo, holding control of the December issue, being that only the December issue was approved for publication.

The December issue was apparently the most popular issue so far, with the December issue containing the most popular articles which were received from the students.

Seniors Asked To Check Technique Biographies

Technique cannot be respon- sible for any errors or omissions in senior biographies unless the error is brought to the attention of the editor personally at once. Walker, not later than 5 P. M.

Since most biography blanks were filled out at the time of registration, and many were inadvertantly submitted, this check is necessary.

Prof. Magomn Closes Series

With Exam Advice

Physical, Emotional Preparation Strengthened, Sleep Held Vital

Summarizing the most important fundamentals to be used in preserva- tion for quizes and final exams, Prof. Alexander Magomn closed his series of lectures on "Study Helps for Preexams" yesterday, at 8 P. M. (See Page 11). Approximately thirty freshmen were present at the lecture and received syllabuses covering the entire series.

Stressing the fact that physical and emotional preparation are as impor- tant as mental preparation in the study for any exam, he explained that adequate sleep is an absolute necessity the night before the exam. It is advisable to present a general method of study for emotional relaxation before any exam.

Start with Easiest First

Before a student attempts to overcome any questions in a book, he should read over all the problems and then pick out the easiest one to do first. If none of the problems seem easy, the student should attempt to revise the wording of the question, and if he discovers anything pertinent in a problem with which he is familiar, he should start from there and try to work everything about that problem that he knows.

Professor Magomn also stated that common errors are also an important factor to be considered in solving problems in any examinations, and is checking problems before turning to it.

The December issue was apparently the most popular issue so far, with the December issue containing the most popular articles which were received from the students.
