of 1918 before our Infirmary was established. To achieve this, all of the available facilities were pressed into crowded and costly service. A new addition which was already in the process of construction was rushed to completion long before the scheduled time. With the help of Buildings and Power, and at the height of the epidemic, the William Emerson room was opened as an emergency ward.

Every attempt to keep the grippe from becoming a general epidemic was made. Visitors were prohibited and only grippe cases were allowed to remain in the infirmary for any length of time. In addition, letters were sent to all the fraternity and sorority housing groups and an even greater demand on the seriousness of the affair and precautions they could take to safeguard themselves.

We wish to take this occasion to express publicly to the Infirmary the thanks of the student body for a job well done.

LOOK OUT, DARNED!

We feel that Technology is as good, if not far superior, than any other college in the world. We realize that there are fighting words, and we are ready to stand behind them, be it by sending the Voo Doo football team should they be allowed to play any football at all, or better still, by having a carnival as stupendous and as glorious as the all-famed Dartmouth Winter Carnival is cracked up to be.

It's snowing, snowing pretty white snow, and if the past few months are any indication, we will probably be snowing, snowing pretty white snow, a great deal more before Spring and a young man's tinsel blossoms forth. It is time that we contend that in spite of the cold weather, mid-year exams, and other similar proponents of Old Man Gloom, there is plenty of room and an even greater demand for the Outing Club, one of Technology's most beautiful snow.

What would be more appropriate than an outdoor winter carnival here at Technology right after term vacation when everybody could get together in the best of spirits and gather around the hearthfire to plan the first of February, we be- come rather self-conscious of the grave emphasis placed on the student of an earlier date of issue. This bulletin lists the books and preparations necessary for the new term during their leisure time.

Even though it may not be of vital importance that the general bulletins be made available to the students before the end of this term, we feel confident that the proper authorities will realize the necessity to the student of an earlier date of issue.

TO A JOB WELL DONE

According to the latest Infirmary reports, the current grippe epidemic has passed the crisis and is now abating. Therefore, while the Infirmary has no urgent need to draw an easier breath, we feel that it is time that some sort of thank you recognition be given the Infirmary for the efficient and or- derly manner in which it met the situation.

A record number of cases was handled after the Christmas vacation and the number housed in the Infirmary reached an all-time high. The total number sick approached 200. The winter carnival might be called upon to help with the originality and merry-making of the affair. House snow men, group snow men, and other contests could furnish the affair.

Because of the changefulness of Boston weather, the emphasis should be on a large informal program of winter activities which are simple to run and do not depend too greatly upon the weather, or be one that is as well planned that it can be held at a moment's notice when it is snowing, snowing beautiful snow.
