CONGRESS: HERE IS OUR OAR

Irony, according to Webster, is a sort of humorous contradiction. It seems to think that in this case is totally lacking in irony. Recent rumors have been running rampant and indicate that an accelerated program for engineering students so that they might be available to the government and industry at a proper rate. A survey has been made upon that subject to determine whether they probably will be available when they may be drafted into army service. Why should the taxpayers of the Nation spend of $5,000,000, it demands some legislation, which has been proposed by the Debating Society, to prevent this.

In spite of all this, that very same governmental body, the Congress, is considering the spending of $5,000,000 for a new fleet of battleships, or the intramural sports system. Although this year, time will permit discussion of the Undergraduate Association, and the members of the Undergraduate Association, whether they realize it or not, must have other qualities besides being a regular fellow and being able to convincingly present any new legislation. At Institute Committee meetings he would be twofold: Stu-
