Beavers Aim For First Win Over Crimson Crew In Ten Years of Boiles are favored again this year, but one thing is certain — the boys up river are going to know they have been in a crew race.

According to Coach Moch all the Beaver eights are better than they at this time last year, but adds Moch so are the Harvard boatings.
Best bet for the Technmen should be in the first race where an inexperienced but eager '44 shell which averges 6' 1 1/4" and 278 pounds will face a young Harvard aggregation.

Topnotch Fifty Shell
In the lightweight race Pat Manning's charges stroke and captained by Bill Boile potentially a crew with the best fifty boats Tech has produced. Regardless, Harvard has an experienced boat, and in their last meeting, the Halves-coached men nipped the Beavers in the last five strokes. With a new Pocock shell getting its baptism in racing, the Beavers may turn the trick.

Tech's second boat with five of last year's championship freshman eight is far stronger than the corresponding crew of last year. Marsh McGuire will be stroking his first race.

Long Practice
Through the exigencies of Boston weather, the Beaver crews have been on the Charles five weeks longer than the Crimson. However, while the Institute eights were rowing in below-have two crews present. Winners in the New England section regatta at Brown have already been announced as Rhode Island State and Amherst.

Other eliminations will be held in the Midwest, at Princeton, and at Annapolis.

Several Canadian schools invited were unable to accept. They were the Royal Military Academy, Queens College, and the University of Toronto.

Favorite in Meet Stars in the regatta will probably be Jerry Coe, skipper, in the A division, and Dick Knapp, skipper in the B division, for the Beavers. Yale, Brown and Williams are expected to be outstanding. From Princeton, P. Gardner Cox, Jr., President of the I.C.V.R.A., who has been ill recently, is expected to turn in his usual fine performance.

Harvard freshman Dave Noyes, Jr., who showed great skill in his duels with Coe in the A division races for the Owen Cup last Sunday, will be back. Last Sunday he came in close behind Coe in three races and won in two.
