A fraternity house represents a considerable investment and any possible damage should be minimized. To meet these dangers students should consider purchasing members of each fraternity should be thoroughly familiar with the methods and techniques of fire control and protection.

The Interfraternity Conference has made available copies of Professor Millard's lecture and it is for the welfare of every fraternity to take advantage of this information.

READ IT, BUT DON'T WEEP

Bulletin board readers will know by this time that the much maligned Walker Memorial Committee has profited by the childish they took after that big confab social week-end about a month ago. A large chart has been posted on the bulletin board opposite the Cashier's Office which is arranged in calendar form on which the various activities should be posted.

This is a much needed beginning, and one which should prove to be invaluable if successful. However, from now on the greater part of the task lies with the individual organization. Each group has been given a space, social affairs and their readiness to use the chart as a guide in planning functions.

We wish to congratulate the Walker Memorial Committee for this progressive step. The objections to the plan are as follows: in regulating Technology's jumbled social life remains with the Institute organizations. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink.

Theory of Economies

Editor: The Tech: December 12, 1941

Dear Sir:

An interesting article appeared in the December 13th issue of The Tech concerning the sale of Defense Stamps at booths in the corridors. The idea is a good one for one time but one will not last.

Give your date defense stamps instead of a postage stamp.

I hope it is a success.

Sincerely yours,

Fred Olsen, '42

Object of Suspicion

Dear Sir:

With the Seniors already robbed of any vacations which they graduate to feel that there is a basis of this in the late registration of the second term in order that the week-end registration may be free of charge. Students stand at present registration will be held on Saturday, January 31, the day following examination. Since the basis cannot be granted after classes as the second half of the year are actually underway, it appears that the date registration is the day of the week-end registration for a week-end registration which is not why would registration not be held some time prior to the beginning of the semester? A day in the middle of the week could be designated for registration, and Seniors could rush in for the year or in the morning, so that most students do not have two examinations on the same day. Three of those few who might be an unfortunate, special compensation could be made the change to make it not need to be made personally because January 31 was a makeshift date anyway, this is a matter but typical of the general lack of forethought evidenced by war hysteria.

Sincerely yours,

Fred Olsen, '42

New Parking Regulations

Effective next Monday, restricted parking areas will be established in the Institute buildings in order to better protect this property during the war.

This is one of the first precautions that the Institute has taken for building protection to vitally affect a considerable portion of the student body and staff. To alleviate the confusion that the elimination of this large parking area would cause, work is now nearing completion on a new parking lot on the Center Street side of the Memorial Hall. This new lot will accommodate approximately 200 cars.

With this new lot and the area beside the dorms and in front of the swimming pool, adequate and safe parking should be available for all Institute parking. However, much unneeded confusion will be avoided if the students remember these new parking regulations and not attempt to park behind the main building and beside Building 2 and 6. Any attempts to so will result in avoidable traffic jams and delays.

It is indeed fortunate that the Institute had the ground available and the willingness of the private sector and staff to the Institute parking. A STITCH IN TIMES SAVES NINE

Much of the initial excitement has worn off since air raids were first announced. Sunday night was one copy available for each house.

In the following days, the number of available copies decreased. The only way to get a copy of Professor Millard's instructions to students was to register either in the morning or afternoon, as students had to have two examinations on the same day. Three of those few who might be an unfortunate, special compensation could be made the change to make it not need to be made personally because January 31 was a makeshift date anyway, and furthermore only the members of the Class of 1942 would be included. I feel that most Seniors would appreciate the opportunity to get away from school after examinations even if for only two days.

Sincerely yours,

A Member of the Class of 1942.
