MORE VOTING PLACES, MORE VOTERS

The votes have been cast, the officers elected, but, in spite of vociferous pleading and goading from every quarter, the student body has once again failed to turn out in even a moderately large number. On this account we have decided to set up additional voting places, and thus have a more representative cross section of student voting. This evidence, in combination with the minute attendance at the elections for Monday night, is conclusive proof that the student body has failed to shoulder the responsibility of taking an active part in the election of their class officials.

Figures released by the Elections Committee show that the Sophomore Class had the greatest number of representatives in Wednesday's voting, with 131 appearing, only slightly fewer than the one-third per cent of the entire Class. The freshmen, as usual, turned out in a comparatively large body, 214 strong this year but still only one-third of their Class roster.

The Junior Class managed to bring in 191, or one-third of its total enrollment, to the polls to elect not only their class officers, but also a representative of the entire undergraduate body. That means that one-third of one-fourth of the complete student body selected the leader of that body and that the winning candidate received the votes of less than one-twelfth of those whom he is to serve during the coming year. Pessimistic record of the day was chalked up by the Seniors, when 112, or approximately one-quarter of the Class, participated in the elections. Although the men they chose will have very few undergraduate duties to perform, the Seniors have displayed practically no interest in the future of the Class.

The enormous of these figures and percentages makes it evident that the students will not go to any trouble for the democratic privilege of casting their votes. Therefore the obvious answer to this lack of interest is the need for a reputable Office of the Clubs. PUBLICATIONS AND THE POCKETBOOK

Undergraduate publications have placed a strenuous demand upon the pocketbooks of Technology students and have probably decreased to some extent their incomes from this past week. Three magazines, T.E.N., Vu, and Vue Dou, have had their appearances on the sales desks in the Main Lobby of Building 10, where classes often fail to take them, to cast their vote. If you get your hands on vote papers in other parts of the Institute, Walker Memorial for instance, more students would be accommodated and a more representative cross section of student opinion would be obtained. Consequently, we recommend to the Elections and the Institute Committees for serious consideration the erection of more voting booths in different locations in the Institute at the next election.

Being an Engineer

You know why the U. S. Army gives constant attention to its motor maintenance—

A small repair now may save a dangerous or irreparable part later!

Let us see what they do.

EXPERTS AT THE FIRST SIGN OF TROUBLE

They work side by side with the Army and Navy. Wherever the need is communications, you are likely to find telephone men and their trucks and materials.

Day and night the order is for speed and more speed.

They wear no uniforms, these telephone workers, but in uniform know how much they are putting into the Nation's bigger picture. They see it firsthand and they know it is first-rate.
