Boston News opens Features Effort of School in War

Conducting a series of feature articles on how production has affected people of all walks of life, The Tech will observe the war effort in the schools of Greater Boston. This feature appeared in this morning's edition.

With the idea of finding out how production has been carried on in the district, the Tech correspondents went to different schools and found that many of the students are already doing valuable work.

The Tech is also interested in other activities at the various schools, and it is hoped that this feature will be of interest to the students of Greater Boston.

The Tech plans to continue this feature in the following weeks.
