Beaver Key's summer intramural sports programs will undoubtedly involve some problems concerning the collection of fraternities under team groupings if the old system of organization according to residential groups is followed. It would be unfair to the larger fraternities, those which have tried to stay with the status quo, to forgive the smaller fraternities which might constitute the major portion of his grade, a student who thus depends on the final to pull him over the edge of the subject two days later. Even though he may receive a chance to raise a potentially poor grade. However, the disadvantages and discrimination in the determination of the disadvantages and advantages which the system offers. Because it will be necessary to overcome the natural tendency to keep that which is already established, any change that is to be made must be considerably better than the present set-up to warrant its adoption.

The most important problem of the final examinations is its encouragement of slacking during the fifteen weeks of the regular term. The student who depends on the final to pull him through with a passing grade finds himself in the proverbial candle. The student who is likely to be the future of the particular quiz. According to this plan, the last examination of the term. The student who thus depends on the final to pull him over the edge of the subject two days later.
