Room Disappears; Fourth Dimension Believed Cause

The mystery leading to this edict brought to light by Homer J. Flasque, '46, who informed Mr. J. K. Dow that his dormitory room, Wood 213, was not where he left it. Mr. Dow attempted at 8 p.m. yesterday to persuade Beezwaks to go into the infirmary for a checkup, but despite this assurance, the room had really disappeared, and he did not know where it went.

According to Beezwaks, his room, Calvin C. Flasque, Jr., '46, room 214, was not where he left it. Calvin was always doing funny experiments and I was afraid he might get into trouble," said Calvin. "Sometimes I'd turn around and he wouldn't be there, then he'd be right behind me." He said he was working on fourth dimension. I don't know how it works, but I know it's not my business. I just want to know if it's in the room, but I guess he'd bring it back.

Mr. Flasque further stated that he was sure his son would return to his dormitory room before the end of the day. In spite of this assurance, the dormitory committee determined to carry on experiments in their dormitories.

Forty Four Prom To Feature Local Entertainment

Entertainment at the Junior Prom this year will hit a new high according to Sorge Gutte, chairman of the committee. To begin with, there will be no bar service due to the new policy of free drinks. In doing this, the committee feels certain that all present will be in the right mood for the three hour floor show to take place from three to six a.m.

Featuring the combined repertoire of the Old Howard and the Globe theatres, Boston's most popular legitimate theatres, the floor show will consist of mass pulchritude which will indeed have quite a lifting effect on the undergraduates who are still capable of rising to the occasion.

Joe Baggypants and Jim Dapper will be maestros and promise to provide a script all made up of censored material from their Old Howard scripts of the past two months. Reminded of the presence of chaperons their only comment was "if they don't know, let's be over their heads and no harm will be done; and if they do know — naughty naughty chaperons."

Conclusion of the show will be made up of a strip tease contest between Fanny Marakas and Yoo Hoo Maples. Public opinion as to the winner will be determined by the intensity of low whistles and heavy breathing. A novelty strip tease for the entertainment of the demure young ladies will be presented by Shoulders Malloch.

Wanted Immediately One Thumb

Wanted immediately one thumb to replace one that was apparently stolen by a Sophomore last Friday. Any type will do. Must be Caucasian, with a fingernail.

Research Ends Thus Ending M.I.T. Physicist

After working in seclusion at the M.I.T. laboratories of physical research for twenty-seven years, Dr. E. J. Gubhibbel today announced the solution of a problem on which he has steadily labored for the entire tenure of his stay at the Institute. The result of this uninterrupted labor was shown to The Tech reporters today as a small black cylinder about two inches in diameter and eight inches in length. One end of the object was protected by glass, and a small button was mounted on the periphery of the cylinder. Dr. Gubhibbel said he was in the midst of discussion with his fellow scientists, when it was announced to him that this self-styled "illuminator" in reality an already patented appliance called a "flashlight". Dr. Gubhibbel was astounded. Dr. Gubhibbel fainting. The visiting scientists quietly pulled the sheet over the prostrate body, and walked out with the flashlight.

Sub Destroyed By Fraternity Chem. Student

An enemy submarine which managed to slip up the Charles River last night was completely destroyed by a quick-thinking Technology Sophomore who dropped a bottle of some unknown liquid on it.

The submarine was spotted surfacing by the Sophomore, Gene G. Gee, of Theta Data Fraternity, as he was chasing a pledge across the Harvard Bridge, attempting to smear his face with the contents of a bottle he was carrying. As the sub broke surface, he recognized the insignia and quickly threw the bottle at it.

The missile broke over the boat, and its contents splattered about. Then to the surprise of all, the sub exploded in a burst of flame and completely disappeared.

Investigations started to determine the contents of this lethal bottle, which might prove a valuable weapon, have met with no success. Each of the members of Theta Data had procured a vial of some chemical from the chemical supply room, and these had been combined to make the mixture.
