Certainty that the Junior Prom committee is now able to make plans and expenditures with the full house for the big social event of its Junior year. Its committee is made up of the pre-dance sellout has been completed so that they may be sold at the regular price. We hope to prevent unfair ticket "scalping," the Junior Prom committee is the dance; there will be no last minute rush for tickets and convention. The Junior Prom, long predicted by the members of this fraternity, rather than be considered as "wasteful," Miss Post estimates that the brothers of this house have taken on the more elegant duties of chaperones. I'm still in doubt as to how pleased the members of this house are when they see, as we say, their "chaperoning" their dates. I'm not sure if unchaperoned afterparties are to be quite proper at this point, and, for the boy, brothers of this fraternity don't "apple pie" either.

An early election of undergraduate leaders would also free the hard-pressed Seniors from any extra-curricular worries they might have been suffering because some students have taken advantage of the opportunity to purchase blocks of tickets for speculative purposes.

The Class of 1944 is indeed fortunate in being assured of a full house for the big social event of its Junior year. Its committee will now be able to make plans and expenditures with the certainty that they can be carried out promptly. At the same time, the committee can make full use of the entire income from the dance; there will be no last minute rush for tickets and conventionally so returns that will come in too late to be used advantageously in dance plans.

On the other hand, the coming Junior Prom may be delayed by the sickness of a few students who are trying to make a little pin money on the resale of Prom tickets to their unfortu- nate classmates who neglected to buy early. In an attempt to prevent misunderstanding, "scraping," the Junior Prom committee is asking that all holders of extra tickets return them to the committee so that they may be sold at the regular price. We hope that the committee is as successful in this endeavor as they were in their original function.

Early Elections
Technology's accelerated program has caused a bit of uncertainty in undergraduate life at the Institute by graduating the Class of 1943 one semester ahead of schedule. Under the regular curricula and the Class of 1943 during that period. Under the regular curricula and the proper etiquette of this type of tea is not expected. It is planned to carry the same tests in a course nearly identical with one regularly given to Technologists at the National Association of Technology, and that Boys' Workers are going back to nature to spend two weeks at a similar program this year. Phils Post record what can be expected in this program

You can help save $29,000 a day!

 pricey second in each of the 156 million telephone calls made every day would add up to over $29,000 in a day. The call is, of course, a vital military and war production call.

A single second is that important. So answer promptly, courteously, and accurately. No urgent action is necessary. Just fill in the simple brief. When making a call, be sure you have the right number—telephone number for your local government, military and war production centers.

WAR CALLS COME FIRST

It's not much to ask if you can help save almost $30,000 a day for vital military and war production calls.
