Red Cross Blood Donor Drive Off To A Good Start At Tech

Mrs. Catherine Conley, of the Red Cross Blood Donor Department, who is in charge of the Technological Blood Drive, stated that so far the drive has been "very, very successful. Mrs. Conley is working in collaboration with a committee selected by the Junior Prom Committee and the Alpha Omicron Pi Omega, the honorary sorority fraternity.

The Red Cross Blood Center, at 661 Boylston Street at Copley Square, has been reserved from 9:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. November 14 through November 16, especially for this drive and is equipped to handle 13 donors every 15 minutes. This drive is in addition to 1:30 and 3:45 students living in the dormitories who have been in contact with the Blood Center. Tomorrow morning, members of the faculty and students will be on hand to accept the blood.

It must be stressed at this point that although the drive ends this Thursday, those who wish to donate their blood can do so later on an appointment basis. If an appointment has been made.

Broadway Hit Comedy Ready

Drumshap Finishes Up Production

Since this is the last week of rehearsal, Drumshap is putting the finishing touches on its latest production, "This Is the Life, Mr. Wells!" which will be presented at 8:30 P.M. on Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14, at the Peabody Playhouse, 67 Charles Street, Boston. Tickets will be on sale at the door at the price of $1.50 for all seats, at the T.C.A. and at the Information Office. All seats are 75 cents.

This play, which drew large crowds on Broadway, was chosen because it affords much entertainment for both the student body and the audience. Thus far it has lived up to its promise and interest shown by the cast at rehearsals has been very great.
