Tech Dinghy Skippers Take Second Place In Final Regatta

Sailors Cop Second Place As Harvard Wins

The Tech dinghy team brought in successful season to a close with a second place finish in the Invitation Team Race Regatta held under the aegis of the Northeastern University Yachting Club. The race was held Sunday morning and afternoon, November 13, on the Charles. The event was a novel type regatta. The twelve teams entered were divided up into four groups, arranged so that the four east teams were placed in different groups. The winners of the morning triangular races were put on a four team group for the afternoon races. The second and third place teams were likewise placed in four teams each.

This set up unlike other regattas provides a chance to a team a chance to win a consolation regatta in the afternoon and more important, a chance to sail with teams the others race.

A Dozen Teams Enter

A dozen New England colleges entered the regatta, the usual three east and three west. The groups were arranged according to the standing of the various teams as shown in the placing. After each race, the teams were grouped from those who placed highest to those who placed lowest. The lowest placed team eliminates the chance of one crew presenting a fast boat for the whole regatta.

The results of the morning series placed Harvard, M.I.T., Coast Guard, and Dartmouth in the first division; Williams, Boston University, Harvard Cross, and Northeastern in the second division; Brown, Boston College, Boston University, and Worcester Tech in the third division.

The results of the afternoon series:

Competing against an extended field of cross-country runners, Frank Cassidy, '46, came in fourth, followed by F. S. Moss, '46, and V. F. Jenkins, '44. The varsity team displayed a poor outing under the leadership of instructor Assistant Coach Bob Meny.
