Women to Study Naval Design

Students Will Qualify For Civil Service Jobs

The rapidly increasing demand for skilled naval engineers and the more technical branches of war industries, has led Governor Lodge to the signing of a special training course for women to be sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, under supervision of the Boston Navy Yard. Six students will be chosen for qualification for Civil Service positions. Subjects to be covered by the course include ship drawing and preparation of plans.

The Institute was encouraged to offer this new course because of the great success of previous programs in the fundamentals of engineering. Although many women trained at the Institute last year were immediately employed and are making important contributions in highly technical positions.

Qualifications for admission to the course include a college degree in mechanical or electrical engineering. Those admitted for this program will be women who have just completed a year during the training period and after the successful completion of the course, will be placed in positions at various shipyards and plants. Women who have not completed a degree, but who are interested in the course should consult the T.C.A. office during business hours.

A.P.O. Blood Drive Plans New Points

The Alpha Phi Omega blood drive, which was begun at the In- stitute as a permanent war measure, will start next week, it was announced last night. The drive has been tempo- rarily meeting because of the mid- winter examinations and the be- tween-vacation season.

A meeting of the fraternity is planned for next Tuesday evening, at which time further plans to- wards making the drive a success will be formulated. To date about 15 percent of the fra- ternity members have donated blood to the Red Cross, many of these giving a num- ber of pints.

Towards the end of this month it is planned to make personal ap- proaches to students living in the dormitories and fractions belonging to the 5:15 Club. Each member of A.P.O. is to be given his own pail.

However, should no one be at the table in the Lobby of Building 10 when the call is made, make appointments themselves at 891 Boylston Street, Boston. These appointments will be credited to the Institute as part of the drive.

To Meet or Not, That is Question For Inst. Comm.

Confusion abounds in Linfield Lounge, yes, confusion abounds in Linfield Lounge. Not tonight at nine-thirty, but yesterday afternoon at 5:00 P.M., when the Institute Committee of the Class of 1945 met to discuss the tenures of two men, one of whom is John W. Col- lon, who are making important contri- butions in highly technical posi- tions.

The committee, however, still hopes that it is possible to hold the whole group together as a later date.

Despite this uncertainty which faces them, the Sophomore class is not discouraged. The Institute Committee of the Sophomore Prom to be held this term, according to Dr. J. L. En- ti, has prepared a program which will be original in many respects.

Under the leadership of the mem- bers of the Quadrangle Class of 1945, which is going ahead with all possible speed to make the Prom a success, a few difficulties were made in the financial arrangements. The plans are proceeding as far as possible without signing any definite contracts or contracting any debts. This is being done in order that if by any chance the dance must be canceled, the class will not be required to stand any loss; so far, at least, the class believe it is not determined.

The new T.C.A. blotters have been delivered to all offices, in the dormitories or in fra- ternity houses. These blotters will not be used in private homes and desire a new bloter may obtain a copy by applying to the T.C.A. office during business hours while the supply is exhausted.

To Report As Soon As Possible

The men who were called yester- day will receive their orders today, according to Mr. Ross, the Institute Security Officer. The students in the group who were called are from the First Service Command. The students in the group were from various service commands, but the first call was to Fort Devens. The students will be called to report "as soon as possible," which, according to Presi- dent McCarthy, means this week.

Professor Attich stressed the fact that many men who had been called for service had not been called, because the group that was called had not been accepted, or would not serve. Professor Attich said that, as all the calls of men who were called for service from the First Service Command, the men had no way of knowing whether or not other men had been called in their home service com- mand.

So far no calls have been issued to the regular Army Rotated Reserve Corps, only those in the Air Corps thus far having been noti-
