THE CONSENSUS OF STUDENT OPINION

Outstripping congressional and perhaps State Department sentiment on the subject of an International Union of nations after the war, Technology students have decided and openly stated for such a union of the world's peoples, as evidenced by the results of a Tech poll conducted recently. It is, however, painfully obvious that many of the people who hail this country's part in such an undertaking as the right decision, have never been in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the students do not stand alone in their feeling that the Russians as well as the Russians as they see themselves are a force for good. A large proportion of the students who have decided to deal with the Russians as if they Russians actually will live on this planet after the war, Washington, (the syndicalist use of Wash- ington is frankly a jargon of subver- sion) as a possible co-op with whom we may confer on the basis of just satisfaction was not so very easy to come by in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the students do not stand alone in their feeling that the Russians as well as the Russians as they see themselves are a force for good. A large proportion of the students who have decided to deal with the Russians as if they Russians actually will live on this planet after the war, Washington, (the syndicalist use of Wash- ington is frankly a jargon of subver- sion) as a possible co-op with whom we may confer on the basis of just satisfaction was not so very easy to come by in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the students do not stand alone in their feeling that the Russians as well as the Russians as they see themselves are a force for good. A large proportion of the students who have decided to deal with the Russians as if they Russians actually will live on this planet after the war, Washington, (the syndicalist use of Wash- ington is frankly a jargon of subver- sion) as a possible co-op with whom we may confer on the basis of just satisfaction was not so very easy to come by in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the students do not stand alone in their feeling that the Russians as well as the Russians as they see themselves are a force for good. A large proportion of the students who have decided to deal with the Russians as if they Russians actually will live on this planet after the war, Washington, (the syndicalist use of Wash- ington is frankly a jargon of subver- sion) as a possible co-op with whom we may confer on the basis of just satisfaction was not so very easy to come by in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the students do not stand alone in their feeling that the Russians as well as the Russians as they see themselves are a force for good. A large proportion of the students who have decided to deal with the Russians as if they Russians actually will live on this planet after the war, Washington, (the syndicalist use of Wash- ington is frankly a jargon of subver- sion) as a possible co-op with whom we may confer on the basis of just satisfaction was not so very easy to come by in the enthusiasm of the students. A major source of apprehension for these men is the Red bugbear, but in this instance, too, Institute undergraduates declared practically two to one that Russia will cooperate in maintaining post-war peace.