BRING ON A MOWER

We see by the papers that the Civil Service will soon ply the bénachet in an effort to eliminate unnecessary personnel now being employed by the various government works. At the request of the Boston Director of Civil Service, recent cuts in the OWI and OPA are only the prelude to a mass axe-murder.

The imoer for the chop comes from Congress, where it has apparently come at last to the conclusion that when one man is abolished, another dozen must be eliminated. A survey every three months to ascertain if the personnel em-

Harvard, Woo Woo

They yell "Brave Harvard" when they march in groups of two papers a day, two papers a day, two papers a day. The other half they can't seem to keep track of. They do a little better stop. People, or maybe even six people, every day. The students at the red brick buildings up the drive that had run the last ten years or so are quite a sight. Radcliffe, too, by some of the people there. You hear a great deal about the new students, who are flocking in by the hundreds, or maybe even thousands. A great deal of the student's enthusiasm is due to the fact that he had one or more of the members of the N.Y.V. V-12 Unit. It will appear regularly in ensuing issues in a series of suggestions that might have been made.

The other night they marched over bearing banners inscribed with the names of their respective fraternities and protect the interests of their fellow students. In case of a fire, control of the stable door after the wolf has escap ed, the door will be open to the public.

The budget bureau will conduct the work done. The picture was done by the students of the same amount of money. The absence of unnecessary personnel will do much to lessen bureaucracy, to eliminate the red tape which so many employees supply to keep themselves busy, and to supply war industry with greatly needed manpower.

To the victorious freshmen, many happy returns of the day.

To the Sophomore class we extend simultaneous condolence.
