Precedents
The entire undergraduate association is in a state of flux and many changes must be made to meet the new conditions which will arise and swarm upon us from month to month. It is very easy to thoughtlessly establish, by single unintentional acts, precedents which will weigh heavily against our successors in governing the student body. It appears that such acts are done without forethought and without realizing that they will form habits.

When the time of the Senior Ball drew near one of the committee members thereupon invited the V-12 ships' company to enter the dance as guests, i.e., without paying the ticket price. This was opened to discussion followed. The result was that, with a majority of the undergraduates as guests and chaperones. We invite many of the officers to attend.
