New Bulletin Ready For Distribution
New Liberal Program Set For All Undergraduates

The new catalogue issue of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Bulletin is now ready for distribution to the student body. Copies of this bulletin may be secured at the Information Desk, Building 7.

This bulletin, which differs very little in makeup and subject matter from the previous issue of Jan. 1943, has an etching of the Great Court on the front cover. Told marks the first time that there has been any pictures on the cover. The bulletin also includes an etching of Technology as it appeared some years ago, and up-to-date maps of the Institute, and 13 pictures.

New Four Year Program
The bulletin also carries the information that in the near future a new four year program in the humanities and social sciences will be put into effect. This program provides that in addition to the customary courses in mathematics, science, engineering, and modern languages, undergraduate students will be expected to carry one course in the general field of humanities and social sciences. The course of study program will not be fully operative until the near future and during the transition period, students may select general studies from list which will be announced earlier.
