Unofficial Effort To Revive Hockey Is Unsuccessful

The movement to revive ice hockey at the Institute after a two-year lapse has met with frustration, it became known this week through the M.I.T.A.A. The drive which was staged recently to solicit student interest through sign-up lists posted in the Dormitories and in Building 10 was completely lacking of official support.

Since athletic funds at present are being drawn from a rather limited student enrollment, the M.I.T.A.A., although not adverse to supporting the sport, finds itself financially unable to back the venture. Another factor opposing the resumption of hockey is that, provided arrangements could be made to use the facilities of the Boston Arena, practice sessions would necessarily have to be conducted early in the morning, with the result that V-12 students would automatically be eliminated from participation.

No Competition

If a team were to be organized, it is doubtful whether there would be sufficient competition from other schools since most of the members of the league in which Tech participated have dropped hockey for the duration of the war.

Hoop Men Meet W.P.I. Saturday

The Tech basketball team plays its fourth game of the season this Saturday, January 6, against Worcester Poly at Worcester. After a two week layoff, the squad will again attempt to get back in the win column. If the improvement shown at the last game in which a good Tufts team just managed to win in overtime, has been increased by a number of practice sessions, the Beavers will have an excellent chance to cop their second win.

Varsity Squash Team To Play U.B.C. Today

White Teamsters Win Against Harvard Reds; Tech Red Team Loses

Technology's Squash Teams finish a busy week today, when the varsity consisting of Petree, Hession and Sonnabend, in that order, meets the Union Boat Club Blues here at 3:00 P.M. Yesterday the Whites and the Reds both played matches.

The Whites beat the Harvard Reds 2 to 1, for their first win of the season. Bothfield of M.I.T., playing in the number one position, lost to Knowles 8-15, 11-15 and 10-15.

The Reds lost their match to the Radiation Team by a score of 3 to 2. Arnes, Ralph Scherer and Bob Topzer losing to Rogers, Bernbaum and Huntington respectively.

Manager Sonnabend has announced a schedule of the future matches that are definite. On January 20, the Varsity will play the Yale Varsity at the Institute Courts. On the following two Saturdays the team will play away at Exeter and West Point. Exeter will play here on February 17, and on March 17 a match is scheduled with Yale.
