The Tech

PLAY BALL

Last week there appeared in The Tech, an editorial advocating a redistribution of the tax system, this system being in need of a technology. At Technology, the need for a graduate management student being in favor of the publication of that editorial, we have come to the conclusion that it would be a step in the right direction. In doing so, we feel that we are of vital importance to present the student body that we are publishers and editors, and expanding the statements put forth in the editorial.

Last year, Mr. Jope, secretary of the Alumni Council on Technology, was opposed to the administration of the Institute in favor of enganging in a similar activity. As a result of Mr. Jope's efforts, the Executive Committee in the fall of last year authorized the administration of the Institute to engage in stimulating, organizing, and operating athletic activities at the Institute.

The Tech would like to emphasize here that the Institute is a manager of athletic activities that are of the power under-graduate athletic clubs. The Institute is only to coordinate the activities of the various athletic clubs on campus. Any such situation would be in a position to institute rules, and policies which now exist due to the inability of groups to decide on a plan of action.

Since the time that a graduate manager was proposed to the administration, the Institute has given rather positive action. This position, however, has been deferred in order to get the necessary study committees formed. Considering the importance of athletics management, might reach an increased interest on the part of the administration.

This fact shows that higher education will not tend to come to a standstill. The latest development of the administration of the Institute, however, has been delayed in order to get the necessary study committees formed. Considering the importance of athletics management, might reach an increased interest on the part of the administration.

There is much to be said for having a graduate manager, who will not only control the affairs of the athletic clubs, but will also act as a liaison between the administration and the student body.

A graduate manager of athletics would act to be the logical answer to the problem at hand. Not the least of these arguments is that most of the committees in the athletic association would consist principally of stimulating, organizing, and operating athletic activities at the Institute.

A graduate manager would be almost certain, accompanied by a forced reduction of expenses, that higher education will not tend to come to a standstill. Thus, an increased interest in the administration of the Institute is a logical step forward.

A graduate manager of athletics would be almost certain, accompanied by a forced reduction of expenses, that higher education will not tend to come to a standstill. Thus, an increased interest in the administration of the Institute is a logical step forward.

A graduate manager of athletics would be almost certain, accompanied by a forced reduction of expenses, that higher education will not tend to come to a standstill. Thus, an increased interest in the administration of the Institute is a logical step forward.

A graduate manager of athletics would be almost certain, accompanied by a forced reduction of expenses, that higher education will not tend to come to a standstill. Thus, an increased interest in the administration of the Institute is a logical step forward.