Two new appointments have been announced in the department of Electrical Engineering by Dr. James R. Killian, Jr., vice president of the Institute. Professor Eugene W. English, coordinator of research and development in the Philadelphia works of the General Electric Company, has been appointed an associate professor and will succeed professor William H. Tumble after the latter's retirement next June. Dr. Lenn Jea Ciu has also been appointed associate professor in the Electrical Engineering department. Dr. Ciu has been supervising a group in the Research Laboratory of Electronics at the Institute on problems in the field of wave research.

eral, narrow-minded people should marry narrow-minded people, and people of different religions should not marry unless neither of them takes his religion very seriously. He also felt that similar education, intelligence and cultural level were necessary.

Girls were advised to "take a look in his pocketbook," the chances for a happy marriage are greatly enhanced if the man has fairly good prospects. A permanent job for the wife is a must, Father Fisher stated.

Both parties to the marriage contract must have good health, both mental and physical, as normal married life might be impossible otherwise. A certificate of health should be obtained by both the man and woman.

Catholic View On Sex

The policy of the Catholic Church on sex, stated Father Fisher, is based on over two thousand years of experience in human nature and is therefore well-founded. Experience shows that even during engagement, are not necesarily sinfully conditied if deliberately entered into with the freedom of the will constitute a serious sin against the laws of God and nature. After engagement, both the man and woman may get in marital relations.

Because the sex urge is so strong in human beings, Father Fisher stated, it is very unfair for two people to be alone too much during courtship. In closing, Father Fisher stated that the only way a marriage can be a happy one for both people is that everyone of himself and himself, Adjustment is necessary, and there must be an atmosphere of mutual trust and co-operation to prevent love from dying out.
