Geiger States His General Policy

Plans for Athletics

Ivan J. Geiger, newly appointed athletics director, said that the Institute is under no 60, 1945, at the Institute earlier this week for con- ference with Zollinger and members of the M.I.T. Athletic Association. This afforded the opportunity to discuss plans for the future of athletics at MIT.

The student body is the basis of the Institute's athletic program. It is the responsibility of the Athletics Committee to ensure that the athletic program is fair and equitable to all students.

Professor Deutsch Discusses Fascism

Tells Where It May Appear Again

By TOM HILTON, '49

"Today, the remnants of fascism stand ready if we fail," said Prof. Douglas V. Brown, Department of History and English Department, during a lecture at 5:00 o'clock in the Lecture Series Committee. The lecture was sponsored by the Institute and the M.I.T. Discussion Committee.

Fascism is a total mobilization of all the resources of the community by a hierarchical governmental apparatus for the purpose of waging aggressive warfare. It is an instrument of mass propaganda, used to manipulate public opinion.

The use of propaganda in the war effort is critical. It is not enough just to inform the public about the issues. The audience must be convinced of the truth of the claims.

The lecture was well attended by students and faculty members.
