Hutenlocher and Marshall please note:

It is admitted that there are two or three really great newspapers in this country, but it remains that people who read the New York Times in New York generally read the Christian Science Monitor in Boston. People who read good newspapers, such as The Times and the Monitor, find out wherever they go. "Critics" probably read the same trash wherever they go.

Why shout about Boston politicians being crooked? It seems to me that I have heard some name like Cump, Kelly, and Spagheti spoken of in too good terms in other parts of the country. Boston turns out good politicians as well as bad ones. However one often hears of some of these men: MacCormack, Sullivan, Kennedy, and Joe Martin.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra does pretty well for itself, so to say. Conceded to be, even by the severest critics, one of the four or five great orchestras in the nation, it plays before a larger audience each year than any other similar organization. It also has the largest and most complete summer festival of any orchestra.

As for Boston sports, we have our ups and downs. The Boston Bruins are a perennial power in the National Hockey League, while the Red Sox won the pennant two years ago, and have just hired a manager who will probably win it for them next year. The Braves are (Continued on Page 8)

T.E.N. Wins Award In Engineering Coll. Magazine Judging

Each Engineering town, the undergraduate technical magazine, won four awards at the annual convention of the Engineering College Magazines Associated held at Ann Arbor, Michigan, on October 17-18.

The Technology delegates were Edward M. Kosower, '49, and Edward T. Miller, '49, editor-in-chief and make-up editor of Tech Engineering News respectively, who flew to Ann Arbor at the expense of the magazine. Twenty-six student magazines competed for three prizes in each of nine classifications.

T. E. N. took first prize in best student articles and best illustrations categories. It received second prize for Biblical Alloys Thirty Seconds, by Joseph M. Staff, in the best single student article classification, and second prize for Best Editorial, Liberty and the Paradoxes of Engineering, by Kosower.

Judge of the competition was John Buchanan who is a feature writer for the Denver Post. The E.C.M.A. had its headquarters at the University of Colorado at Boulder.
