Swordsmen Lose First Match, 15-12

Crimson Strength In Saber Decides

The MIT fencers last Wednesday had their string of eight victories broken by Harvard, who were especially strong in the saber, by a score of 15-12. This was the first loss for the Techmen in three matches this year, and they appeared headed for their fourth straight victory point into the saber event against Harvard, after taking 5-4 victories in the foil and the epee. Brauns Advances To Third Round In Intercollegiates

Advancing to the third round of the National Intercollegiate Saber Championships at Yale's Patric Whitney Gymnasium, Bill Brauns, Tech's captain, was defeated Friday by one of the finalists, Roger of Yale. Brauns had beaten McGovern of Harvard, in the first round and Williams of the second round when he met Rogers. Boyne took the first game 15-16, and Brauns came back to win the second game 15-12. The third game was hotly contested and was called by the referee before Boyne won 17-16. The Valenian went on to win the fourth game 15-12 and take the match.

Gerry Martel, of Tech, lost his first-round match with Harvard's Rogers in three straight games, 14-15, 16-15, and 15-13. Leonard, of the University of Pennsylvania, defeated Tech's Tom Auby in the first round, while Yale's Ixou over the Techmen, held by Shrunk, of Yale, knocked Tech's Tom Kelly out of the tournament in the first round.
