I have just obtained my copy of the 1948 Technique and I wish to inform you that it contains one glancing omission in the volume. Nowhere in the entire book do the names Westgate or Westgate West appear, much less any indication, however slight, as to the existence of that project even exist!...

"As far as my wife, my son, and self are concerned, the only thing I am sure I am seeing is an opinion of the real Institute. Our two daughters are Westgate and Westgate West, and the only reason we have been informed of the project have included some of the most pleasant and memorable experiences and friendships of our lives. We refer to the dorms available, which have been ample jobs available, than ever before in the history of the Institute. Over 184 individual.

"Last fall your Editor-in-chief requested a short article about Westgate and Westgate West, in a letter to me. The Westgate Council drafted such as the article and forwarded it to the Editor-in-chief, to acknowledge the receipt of the letter and to inform me of the Editor-in-chief, but now it is apparent why people were interested in the project made—Technique was not interested in the story of the unique living group within the hall covered.

Donald Marshall ’48

Additional Complaints

The second complaint received by us was from a member of the Senior Class, Walter S. Brauns, Jr., of Bethany.

"I can not see how it could be possible for the board of Technique to include this story in their volume. Even with my limited knowledge of the senior class, I have noticed misnaming of names, omissions in captions, mistakes in the names of dorms, a half we have lived In the Westgate and Westgate West, in a pleasant and memorable experiences."

(Continued on Page 9)

More Job Opportunities Now Open For Seniors Than Ever Before, Announces Placement Office

By Marvin C. Grossman

The placement department has announced that there have been more requests from industries than ever before in the history of the Institute. The current concerns have been reported by the Placement Bureau for the purpose of interviewing candidates for degrees, as well as for employment.

Although this is the largest graduating class this year in the M.I.T. (about 645 seniors), there are no more slots available in the Placement Bureau, and many of the students have been offered up to $5,000 a year. The placement department added that seniors who are interested in obtaining this money should obtain as many job offers as possible so that they can have a choice of the best.

Gumpertz Winner In Pres. Stratton Essay Contest

Walking away with first prize in the $500以上的 essay contest at the Charles Hayden Foundation is an essay on "The Problems in Multiple Arch Bridges." Gumpertz, a member of course 4-8, was followed by John M. Mitchell, Jr., 4-8, a C. X. man, who was in the Institute in the Weatherman. Mitchell’s work was entitled "Proposed Color Television System."

Gumpertz, the winner, presents his paper during the Class Day Receptions.

Emphasis On Presentation in Technique Writing

Detailed instructions for the writing of the final papers were judged on the ability of the candidates to organize the material, but not on originality or variety of theme. The intention of Samuel Stratton, former president of the Institute, in founding the contest was to give students the opportunity to obtain a correct idea of the preparation of scientific material for publication and to acquire the art of speaking.

"As far as my wife, my son, and self are concerned, the only thing I am sure I am seeing is an opinion of the real Institute. Our two daughters are Westgate and Westgate West, and the only reason we have been informed of the project have included some of the most pleasant and memorable experiences and friendships of our lives. We refer to the dorms available, which have been ample jobs available, than ever before in the history of the Institute. Over 184 individual.

"Last fall your Editor-in-chief requested a short article about Westgate and Westgate West, in a letter to me. The Westgate Council drafted such as the article and forwarded it to the Editor-in-chief, to acknowledge the receipt of the letter and to inform me of the Editor-in-chief, but now it is apparent why people were interested in the project made—Technique was not interested in the story of the unique living group within the hall covered.

Donald Marshall ’48

Additional Complaints

The second complaint received by us was from a member of the Senior Class, Walter S. Brauns, Jr., of Bethany.

"I can not see how it could be possible for the board of Technique to include this story in their volume. Even with my limited knowledge of the senior class, I have noticed misnaming of names, omissions in captions, mistakes in the names of dorms, a half we have lived In the Westgate and Westgate West, in a pleasant and memorable experiences."

(Continued on Page 9)

More Job Opportunities Now Open For Seniors Than Ever Before, Announces Placement Office

By Marvin C. Grossman

The placement department has announced that there have been more requests from industries than ever before in the history of the Institute. The current concerns have been reported by the Placement Bureau for the purpose of interviewing candidates for degrees, as well as for employment.

Although this is the largest graduating class this year in the M.I.T. (about 645 seniors), there are no more slots available in the Placement Bureau, and many of the students have been offered up to $5,000 a year. The placement department added that seniors who are interested in obtaining this money should obtain as many job offers as possible so that they can have a choice of the best.

Gumpertz Winner In Pres. Stratton Essay Contest

Walking away with first prize in the $500以上的 essay contest at the Charles Hayden Foundation is an essay on "The Problems in Multiple Arch Bridges." Gumpertz, a member of course 4-8, was followed by John M. Mitchell, Jr., 4-8, a C. X. man, who was in the Institute in the Weatherman. Mitchell’s work was entitled "Proposed Color Television System."

Gumpertz, the winner, presents his paper during the Class Day Receptions.

Emphasis On Presentation in Technique Writing

Detailed instructions for the writing of the final papers were judged on the ability of the candidates to organize the material, but not on originality or variety of theme. The intention of Samuel Stratton, former president of the Institute, in founding the contest was to give students the opportunity to obtain a correct idea of the preparation of scientific material for publication and to acquire the art of speaking.

"As far as my wife, my son, and self are concerned, the only thing I am sure I am seeing is an opinion of the real Institute. Our two daughters are Westgate and Westgate West, and the only reason we have been informed of the project have included some of the most pleasant and memorable experiences and friendships of our lives. We refer to the dorms available, which have been ample jobs available, than ever before in the history of the Institute. Over 184 individual.

"Last fall your Editor-in-chief requested a short article about Westgate and Westgate West, in a letter to me. The Westgate Council drafted such as the article and forwarded it to the Editor-in-chief, to acknowledge the receipt of the letter and to inform me of the Editor-in-chief, but now it is apparent why people were interested in the project made—Technique was not interested in the story of the unique living group within the hall covered.

Donald Marshall ’48

Additional Complaints

The second complaint received by us was from a member of the Senior Class, Walter S. Brauns, Jr., of Bethany.

"I can not see how it could be possible for the board of Technique to include this story in their volume. Even with my limited knowledge of the senior class, I have noticed misnaming of names, omissions in captions, mistakes in the names of dorms, a half we have lived In the Westgate and Westgate West, in a pleasant and memorable experiences."

(Continued on Page 9)