Monsalvatge Wins Net Tourney; Tops Kaufmann In Exciting Final

In an exciting third set match, Jerry Monsalvatge defeated Axel Kaufmann 5-7, 9-7, 6-3, to win the final round of the M.I.T. Open Tennis Tournament last Saturday afternoon at Briggs Field. Jerry, third seeded at the outset of the tournament, advanced to the final round of Braille by defeating Warren Waters in his initial meet. Axel, seeded first, lost to Kaufmann to gain the finals.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT WINS

Jerry took five and three games in a row. The streak ended as Axel began to serve with accuracy and took four consecutive games to win the first set 6-3. Jerry began the second set and was able to gain the finals. Kaufmann's serving was duplicated in the fifth set, as both players held service, but with only two minutes to go, Jerry's serve was sharper and more accurate than Kaufmann's. The first set started off as both players held serve. Monsalvatge, however, broke Axel's service and after game when his serve was broken, and dropped his own service in the last game of the match when he double faulted three times, including match point. Jerry's 1-7, 6-3 victory was a well deserved and hard-earned one, as he played well throughout the whole match. His service never faltered, and he hit the ball sharply and accurately. Ax was not far behind in the general excellence of his game. There were few long rallies in the match, but many quick passing shots and saves were made on both sides. The issue was in doubt up to the very last point.

Challengers of the various teams which the Tech team will meet next spring might well watch for Jerry, who was probably still playing the number one position at the University of New Hampshire. The second man on his team during last year's aggregation, has completed four years of varsity competition and is therefore ineligible for inter-division competition this year. Jerry filled the first position on his team and never went undefeated in all of his inter-division matches.
