FEDERAL AID TO COLLEGES

A bill is now being prepared for Congress to act, if passed, will have far reaching effects on the structure of education in the United States. The purpose of this legislation, if enacted, would provide encouragement to arrange students on federal grants with a cost exceeding 100,000 dollars per year.

The subject of the bill is to bring the advantages of a college education within the reach of everyone capable of receiving benefit from it and through it converting the private to the public nature of such education. Such an aim is inadvisable because means of carrying it out may very well. Under the proposed scheme the students would be chosen competitively through examinations. The bill would allow states to dip into the college, either public or private, of his preference. It was emphasized that the only condition was that it be realized from the system of support that it is entirely self-supporting, but more and more these days the advancement of a college education Assoclatlon, would provide scholarshlps to eligloe students unable for financial reasons to come to college.

Whether or not the increased federal control of educational activities is credited to the Department of Education, the following came Mozart's symphony, which was conducted by Mr. Harry Kokalis of Wellesley. Among the nics existing now in re-

Another means of supporting the students unable for financial reasons to come to college would be increased support from industry. More and more these days the various industries in the country are realizing the advantages to their system of support to the college level of students. As this trend continues it is hoped that funds the available industry will support to receive an education commensurate with their ability.
