HAIL AND FAREWELL

While it has been an annual tradition for the last issue to have a "Service to Community" section, this year, due to the absence of student groups, the section is called "SERVICE TO COMMUNITY." It is intended to encourage students to engage in community service and to recognize their efforts.

SERVICE TO COMMUNITY

There is no black or white answer to the question of whether a college education is best obtained at a school located in a large city or in a small town. Each situation offers numerous advantages and disadvantages. However, there is one important advantage that is almost inherent in the small college town that is difficult to find in the large cities housing many of our colleges. Yes, surprisingly enough, this incident might easily be remedied with a little effort and planning. Of course, the above reference is to service by the students to the community. Although many do, Community service is not something that should be put off until such time as a person becomes actively engaged in activities that must every be done with an eye towards the community of the student. Every activity, young or old, the college or the university. It seems that this particular student made the Greek letter instead in a pre-arranged way. Nothing more was thought about the matter, until about four days later. Then the incident happened. It seemed to be one left. The paper that confronted the Physics professor was an ambitious soul. He didn't put his luck at an early quiz. As he was walking out he forget to take the illegal quiz. He was dashing from his hand, and as to each and every member of the graduating class, the staff sends its sincere best wishes for good luck and success.

Bill Mitchell is quite a warrior, that's right. (With respect to the High Watch Company.)

While reading my fan mail, I came across one of a young man who accused me of using a dangerous participle. Arguing with the Editor the other day, the boys around the office said, "I never use dangerous participles!"

See you next term.
