The Beaver Barks

by Lee Sartori

WHAT ABOUT TECH'S-A-POPPIN?

We should like to register a dissent against the criticism appearing in the editorial column last Friday, which expressed the opinion that Tech's-a-Poppin ought to be dropped from the Technology calendar. We urge the students of the committee to save it.

Admittedly, Tech's-a-Poppin is not perfect. The conduct of the contest of the last decade basketball relations between the two schools has been by any stretch of the imagination be considered as "out of our class." However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be considered a "major" basketball and hockey games. However, with the possible exception of Harvard in hockey, none of the weekend's opponents can be consid...