ASSOCIATED TUTORS PROVIDE BOOST TO MANY FROSH, SOPHs

Associated Tutors, the service provided by student tutors to assist freshmen in their transition from high school to college, has been a valuable resource for new students at MIT. The tutors have been instrumental in helping students acclimate to the academic and social aspects of college life. Through their assistance, students have been able to build confidence and develop essential study skills.

The success of the program has been evident in the reduced stress levels and improved academic performance of the students. Tutors have provided a supportive environment, enabling students to feel more at ease and approach their coursework with greater ease.

The growth of the program can be attributed to the dedication of the tutors and the continuous support from the administration. The association of tutors has played a crucial role in ensuring that students are well-supported throughout their first year at MIT. The program has undoubtedly contributed to the success of many students and will continue to thrive in the years to come.
