Graham Replies To Communism

Evangelist Calls For Revitalizing of Morals

Nearly 300 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-

well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day.

The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.

Nearly 3500 students, faculty and staff members congregated in Rocke-
well Chapel last Friday night to hear Billy Graham, noted evangelist, present his solution to the problems which confront the world to-day. The meeting opened with hymns singing a prayer and a solo, after which Mr. Graham was introduced and took the pulpit. He opened his talk with the observation that "since the human history of the human race, we as human beings have been faced with the problems that we face at this time." He observed that we are "heading straight for a third world war," and "the world in which we live is in a state of chaos." He attributed this breakdown to the "fact that our present generation has, 'humanized God, deified man,'" and that this has led to a "fallen. These and other examples, he said, of the depths to which our society has fallen, "hold in store for us." However, he added, "never in the history of the human race have we as human beings faced the problems that we face at this time."

To Cemm'unism.