development of teamwork, so necessary during these times of national emergency and partial disruptions of the normal educational program. Wasserman noted the various accomplishments of the Institute athletes teams last year, and cited the achievements of several undergraduate activities in teaching teamwork to their members.

School of Humanities
In the absence of this year's chairman of the faculty, Professor Photobomb, Professor DewnecBrown explained the actions of the faculty in the matters made in the Educational Survey Committee report. Undergraduate education will continue to be directed towards professional, but not vocational, preparation. Because of the increased emphasis on the humanities in the general education of the undergraduate, the Humanities Division will become the School of Humanities, on the level of the present Schools of Science, Engineering, and Architecture. However, Professor Brown pointed out, the science and engineering courses themselves must do part of the job. To this end, he added, limited material will be studied, to allow the thorough study of fundamentals and to permit time for reflection.

Tribute to Dean
President Killian recalled the many qualities of Dean Baker which made him so respected at the Dean of Students and as a man. Although the New Democracy will be renamed as a memorial to the Dean, Dr. Killian believes that the completion of his work and the following through of his philosophy would be appreciated even more by him.

The convocation closed with a standing tribute by all present. This was the first of three or four convocations planned for this year.
