Grapplers Rally, Start Practice, First Match For Tech's-a-Poppin

Vanity wrestling coach Roy Mervell and freshman Chuck Busneta got their first look at these prospective squads this week on a fly in held in Room 4-20 at 6:00 p.m. The Varsity held theirs on Tuesday and Freshmen rallied a day later. Films of last year's New England Finals and good turnouts featured both rallies.

Manager Marvin Baker announced both the Varsity and Freshmen squads today. The varsity men grapple eight times, the room six.

The only returnees from last year's varsity is Tom Culloughan at 146 pounds. Sinclair Buchschafer, a transfer from Annapolis who was ineligible last year, has joined the squad and is expected to be of considerable help.

Most of last year's freshman squad is returning. Those back include: Joe Myers at 121 lbs., Jack Trell at 138 lbs., Bob Schmidt at 136 lbs., Bob Whiting at 155 lbs., and Chuck Beaumour in the unlimited

Engineers Oppose UConn's Tomorrow In Soccer Contest

On Saturday the Tech soccer squad journey to Storrs where they will meet the team from the University of Connecticut. Both the varsity and freshmen squad will make the trip. The varsity will be scoring for their third win of the season while the freshmen will be scoring for their third win of the season. The Techs will hold their game on Briggs Field at 1:30 p.m. The Rugby Club will play two more games this season, meeting McGill University on November 11 at Montreal and then a week later on Briggs Field on November 18. The team, composed of grad students as well as undergraduates, has an international flavor, with the South Africans and two Englishmen on the squad.

Schedules next on the agenda of the Tech Rugby, is the New England Fall Open Invitational, more traditionally known as the Schell Trophy Regatta. Honoring MIT's Prof. Edwin M. Schell, head of the department of civil engineering, the big "reward" event of the fall season's regattas.

The regatta's coveted position is the final one to be decided, first, that the composition for the trophy is selected from the winning team of the New England Fall Open Invitational. Second, that the regatta takes on a true intercollegiate opposition, with the participation receiving at least one team from each college in the Midwestern district, and two schools from the Middle Atlantic region. Finally, the "furnishers" will be McGill, from Toronto, Michigan from the Midwestern district, and George Washington and the Big Red of Cornell from the Middle Atlantic region.

Engineers Probable Favorites

The Engineers, as hosts, are given a slight edge in the two-day affair to start Saturday. The Beavers will probably start skippers Joe McKinnon and Howie Fawcett, with Bob Wivel, Dick Moroney, and Herb Gervinman in reserve. Crews are still uncertain, but Larry Buckstaff and Joe McKinnon, as well as any of the non-sailing skippers. New England competition for the match will run high, consisting of Yale, defending champions, Middlebury, Tufts, Amherst, Northeastern, and Coast Guard and Harvard, two strong teams to be counted on for a strong title bid.

Final Handicapper Form

In this issue, J.P. Ticket To Be Awarded Tuesday

Since this issue contains both Handicapper Form 5 and 6, it will determine the Intramural Football Pool. However, since the play-off games have not been finished for some time, the final results of the contest will not be available for a few weeks. In hope of providing the participants with the results of the contest prior to this date, Handicapper Form 5 is drawn, the J.P. Ticket To Be Given Tuesday.

Due to the fact that tickets from tickets are now on sale, we have decided to place the Grand Prize of the contest, a ticket to the J.P. Ticket To Be Given Tuesday so that he may turn in his option in time for desired seating. Therefore, the leading 2 contenders of the contest (based on the results of overall averages 4 of 4 of the last Handicapper Form) will decide between themselves who may have the ticket. In the event the final results of the contest (form 6) show that another contestant should have had the ticket, then the registration will be made.
