A recent survey of 48 Wellesley Freshmen revealed that the majority of the girls selected the "waltz" because of its academic standards. Two girls said it was because "Waltz is just twelve miles from Harvard, 14 miles from M.I.T." Other reasons included the fact that no dancing was necessary, among family or friends.

Sure, but even in a city where one can see that there are two honest girls in the bunch...

"A report issued last week by Dr. Raymond S. Miles, placement director at the Illinois Institute of Technology, lists these unusual developments: 1. More companies are interviewing prospective graduates in the colleges than ever before. 2. Salary levels for beginning engineers have increased 15% in the last four months. 3. Any engineering graduate can begin work the day he receives his diploma."

The following appeared as part of the text for an advertisement in a college periodical, titled "Introduction to Social Polite Adjectives".

"Give your children the right to the use of polite adjectives..."
