Continuing with its series of outstanding film presentations, the lecture series will present "Journey to the End of the Night," a 1954 production featuring Robert Mitchum, Charles Boyer, Robert Cummings, Edward G. Robinson, John Hodiak, Barbara Stanwyck, and Hattie Liddle. This film is a contribution to the development of the noir genre, a subgenre of film noir, and is an exciting departure from the Hollywood mainstream.

The film will be presented on Thursday, February 21, 5:00 p.m., in the University Center. Admission fee is thirty cents.

D.P.

(Continued from Page 1)

The films and presenters were selected over many months, each of which was filled in by devoting a separate episode of thought and research, and the result is a source high-quality, high-stakes performance. Film and Television is an exciting escape from the Hollywood mainstream.

The film will be presented on Thursday, February 21, 5:00 p.m., in the University Center. Admission fee is thirty cents.

D.P.

(Continued from Page 1)

The films and presenters were selected over many months, each of which was filled in by devoting a separate episode of thought and research, and the result is a source high-quality, high-stakes performance. Film and Television is an exciting escape from the Hollywood mainstream.

The film will be presented on Thursday, February 21, 5:00 p.m., in the University Center. Admission fee is thirty cents.

D.P.

(Continued from Page 1)

The films and presenters were selected over many months, each of which was filled in by devoting a separate episode of thought and research, and the result is a source high-quality, high-stakes performance. Film and Television is an exciting escape from the Hollywood mainstream.

The film will be presented on Thursday, February 21, 5:00 p.m., in the University Center. Admission fee is thirty cents.

D.P.

(Continued from Page 1)

The films and presenters were selected over many months, each of which was filled in by devoting a separate episode of thought and research, and the result is a source high-quality, high-stakes performance. Film and Television is an exciting escape from the Hollywood mainstream.

The film will be presented on Thursday, February 21, 5:00 p.m., in the University Center. Admission fee is thirty cents.