DIC (Continued from Page 1) academic privileges; excluding technicians, they constitute about 50% of those working on sponsored research at MIT. Projects undertaken by DIC are limited to research. The development of products occurs only in special instances, such as the production of complex Army equipment. The step is justified here by the fact that it is usually a conversion of work undertaken during the war; by patriotic considerations; and by its importance in the field of education.

Fiscal Officer

With regard to patents, the Institute grants industrial sponsors exclusive privileges for a certain number of years. At the end of this period it reserves the right to dispose of patents as it thinks fit. It is of opinion that they are not being properly handled. Publication of results of research may be held for a time so as to allow the sponsor to apply for patents.

NOTICES

Metallurgy Lecture

Dr. John H. Hollomon, Associate Director of the Metallurgy Division of the General Electric Research Laboratory in Schenectady, will speak this afternoon on "The New Metallurgy in Industry." The lecture will be at 3:00 p.m. in Room 6-120. Dr. Hollomon will also discuss the advances in metallurgy and will describe the opportunities that are open in this field. Students and staff are cordially invited to attend.

H.N.A.

A National Students Association Conference on undeveloped areas will be held at Harvard University this week-end, March 2, 3, and 4. Representatives from the Student Department, United Nations, and the Economic Cooperatives will attend. On Saturday Dr. James A. Forest, Dean of the School of International Relations, will speak. Registration for the Conference will be at a Phillips Brooks House, Harvard, on Friday, March 2, from 5:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Registration fee is one dollar.

Bar Bell Club

The monthly meeting of the M.I.T. Bar Bell Club will be held on Thursday, March 3, at 5 p.m. in the club room of the Barber Field House. Anyone interested in body building or weightlifting is urged to attend.

Physics Society

A tour of the Institute's Low Temperature Research Laboratory will be conducted by the Physics Society this afternoon at 4:00 p.m. Anyone interested in this type of work is welcome. The group will meet at the laboratory, which is located in Rooms 20-204. For further information, contact, Anthony Kaurz at the Baker House, or Alan Lazarus at the East Campus.

Karoso Match

The Karoso Club will hold a match with Cornell University's Karoso Team this Saturday, March 5, the club announced.

Logarithms

(Continued from Page 1) arrive in time to perform, with the result that a bass sang first tenor, and, they claim, did it very well at that.

There is no immediate shortage of men to fill parts now as there was at Wheeling, but graduations will leave holes in the ranks, and good voices are always welcome. The Logarithms will hold a tryout in the spring of this year—details have not yet been announced—to give those interested a chance to meet the group. It is not necessary, however, for anyone to wait until then, since the doors of the practice room are wide open for anyone who wants to go in to listen.

Present Membership

Present membership of the Logarithms includes twelve men, nine of whom are undergraduates, two graduate students, and one a research technician.

First tenors are Dan Sullivan '52, Dick Greenwich '31, and Norm Weston '32. Second tenors are Claude Brenner, Paul Rothby '31, and Obo Tannenbaum '32. The basists are Jim Bresser, Bob Kerwin, and Frank Wilson '33, while Jere Babcock, Bob Norton '31, and John T. Hamling, '33, round out the bass parts.

(Continued from Page 1) to put them in a five-way tie for fourth place. Both the affirmative team of Thomas A. Paulinaker, '53, and James A. Zurburgin, '53, and the negative team of John A. Hansey, '53, and John T. Hamling, '33, won second and last place.
