THE TECH is normally delayed with occasional delays which have to be brought down into a salutary "hello." It has never been shipped late, and we are fully and fairly interesting in its own way. With a grain of sand, read Stuart Eldred's effort for THE TECH SHOW.

The camera are coming! Yes, on March 7, at approximately twelve o'clock the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be visited by the world famous camel Leila-Leela, accompanied by her and master, the honorable Bint Shakey, 15 D.M., M.I.T., and world renowned camel specialist. Under the supervision of Leila-Leela, Leila-Leela has not only mastered water consumption, sand walking, sleepless nights, and many other difficult subjects, but can, when spirits move bare, smoke rings.

Inn, in an exclusive interview, told how he found Leila-Leela in an obscure African wine shop. "When I saw her," he stated, "I knew at once that this was no ordinary camel!"

During their many world tours Leila-Leela and Bint Shakey have entertained kings, queens, aristocrats, just plain ladies, men, children, celebrities, smokers, vegetarians, and many other difficult subjects, but can, when spirits move bare, smoke rings.

"Be sure not to miss this opportunity to see this magnificent camel and trainer, "to the building of 10 at 12 p.m. on March 7, and a sort of camel and human personality study called "Imperial Camel.""

Under his expert tutelage, Leila-Leela is doing everything from blow smoke rings, sitting for hours, playing football, farming, applying differential equations, sand walking, sleepless nights, and many other difficult subjects, but can, when spirits move bare, smoke rings.

The dormitories are certainly living up to their names of social clubs by their continued accelerated activity. Last weekend was particularly interesting in this regard.

Social committees set up a futuristic atmosphere which they called "Dormitory Ballet." The attitude was that everyone should be treated as royalty. To meet the occasion, told how he found Leila-Leela and Bint Shakey in an obscure African wine shop. "When I saw her," he stated, "I knew at once that this was no ordinary camel!"

During their many world tours Leila-Leela and Bint Shakey have entertained kings, queens, aristocrats, just plain ladies, men, children, celebrities, smokers, vegetarians, and many other difficult subjects, but can, when spirits move bare, smoke rings.

"Be sure not to miss this opportunity to see this magnificent camel and trainer, "to the building of 10 at 12 p.m. on March 7, and a sort of camel and human personality study called "Imperial Camel.""

The dornitories 'are certainly living up to their names of social clubs by their continued accelerated activity. Last weekend was particularly interesting in this regard.

Social committees set up a futuristic atmosphere which they called "Dormitory Ballet." The attitude was that everyone should be treated as royalty. To meet the occasion, told how he found Leila-Leela and Bint Shakey in an obscure African wine shop. "When I saw her," he stated, "I knew at once that this was no ordinary camel!"

During their many world tours Leila-Leela and Bint Shakey have entertained kings, queens, aristocrats, just plain ladies, men, children, celebrities, smokers, vegetarians, and many other difficult subjects, but can, when spirits move bare, smoke rings.

"Be sure not to miss this opportunity to see this magnificent camel and trainer, "to the building of 10 at 12 p.m. on March 7, and a sort of camel and human personality study called "Imperial Camel.""