Ecstasy Showing Banned by Cambridge Police Not Council

By ARTHUR MAINES

Frequent use of ecstasy by freshmen on the campus is outlined in the recent report of the Advisory Committee on Student Activities. Facilities were strongly defended by G. W. DeWitt, Thomas L. Hilton last Wednesday night at a meeting of the student body. Hilton pointed out that living in the dorms during the freshman year forms close friendships, makes the student more familiar with campus facilities, and raises his dorm ratings. He also added that almost all comparable schools such as Duke, Cornell, and the University of Pennsylvania require freshmen to live on campus.

In support of the high scholarship averages for those students living in dormitories, he also quoted the approximate averages for those students living as Princeton, Yale, and Cal Tech.

Hilton stated, "Freshmen living in dormitories always rate better than the average freshman."

Fraternity Advantages

Lawrence Mayer, president of the IFC, outlined the importance of the IFC meeting that fraternity freshmen must take part in. Arrangements for conflict examinations and for examinations not scheduled this term are outlined in the recent report of the Advisory Committee on Student Activities.

"Proposals to house all freshmen in the dormitories during the approximate first term ratings for this year's freshmen were quoted as 3.0 for dormitory freshmen, 3.8 for fraternity freshmen, and all freshmen averages 3.6," Mr. Hilton stated. "Freshmen living in dormitories always rate better than the average freshman."

FCC Formulates New Plans for Improved Freshman Weekend

The promotion of a series of events will be the principal aim of the Freshman Coordinating Committee. This year, five programs will be transferred to the S.A.P. H., and coordinated with the Sophomore and Junior years. The Sophomore year since recent changes in the program in order to achieve more informal level than last year.

Lord Tedder Visits Tech, Compares U.S. And Britain

By EDWARD HIGEL

"Americans have a different point of view than ours," Lord Tedder, who was an Allied Deputy Supreme Commander in Europe under General Eisenhower in World War II, said during an interview with the Technical Press.

Lord Tedder, who was an Allied Deputy Supreme Commander in Europe under General Eisenhower in World War II, said during an interview with the Technical Press.

"The Americans were always more interested in the technical aspects of their work. We were more interested in the political and economic aspects."

Lord Tedder, who was an Allied Deputy Supreme Commander in Europe under General Eisenhower in World War II, said during an interview with the Technical Press.

The Technical Press interview was conducted with the British Defense Minister, Lord Tedder, who was in the United States on a three-day visit.

"The Americans were always more interested in the technical aspects of their work. We were more interested in the political and economic aspects."

"The Americans were always more interested in the technical aspects of their work. We were more interested in the political and economic aspects."

"The Americans were always more interested in the technical aspects of their work. We were more interested in the political and economic aspects."